

Lamb.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. Chairman and members of the Legislature, I agree with what Senator McFarland has said so I'm not going to repeat it. I don't have any objection to the means by which the bill is being amended. I like that method, as a matter of fact. But what is being done is the part that I have some problems with. So, unquestionably, the bill is going to advance because there has been enough push by those who want it to ensure that result. But, on Select File...excuse me a minute. On Select, there may be an amendment proposed but I just want into the record that I agree with what Senator McFarland said and I may try to work up an amendment by Select File.

PRESIDENT: Thank you. Senator Lamb, please.

SENATOR LAMB: Are there other lights on, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT: One, Senator McFarland.

SENATOR LAMB: Again. I'll let him go ahead and then I'll close.

PRESIDENT: Okay, Senator McFarland.

SENATOR MCFARLAND: I would just relate to you a story that I heard and I understand...I'm not sure it's totally accurate. It's hearsay information but I am told that there is a law professor out at the university who...the University of Nebraska Law School, who, as a hypothetical to his class, asked them to propose a situation in which you could establish a violation of due process when a car was towed without any type of hearing or without any type of inquiry as to the reasons for the towing of that car. And it's my understanding that one of the students proposed a very good situation and that was a situation where perhaps the person had a legitimate right to park in a parking lot but, because the sticker had been removed or something like that had been done, there was a mistake made as to whether that car had...could legally park in that lot. And they proposed that what if, in that particular situation, the person was a diabetic and kept their insulin in that particular automobile and then, taking that one step farther, the hypothetical was, given the way that cars are sometimes towed without any reason and without any inquiry, what if someone tows that car away, tows that person's insulin away and they go into insulin shock
